"Episode 25" of the ongoing Halema'uma'u eruption began at 11:57 a.m. today, and lava fountains from the north vent soon reached heights of about 330 feet. According to the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory, Episode 25 was preceded by intermittent gas-pistoning in the north vent, with associated small spatter fountains and lava flows which began before dawn on Tuesday.

Fountain heights are likely to increase in the coming hours, HVO said. Most episodes of Halema'uma'u crater lava fountaining since Dec. 23, 2024, have continued for around a day or less and have been separated by pauses in eruptive activity lasting generally at least several days.

All current and recent activity is within Hawaii Volcanoes National Park.
