No question someone was getting massive kickbacks. We will demand to know who was : this, enriching themselves and what prison sentencing they will be getting but I'm sure it tip of the iceberg regarding government fraud.

Yes it is the tippy tip but the biiggest problem is that there is no way to report these 1 no one to report it to. This is a problem throughout the health care scam.

Correct. The federal government is in free fall. It expensively outsourced all of its operations and enforcement interfaces to private corporations - and those companies were unaccountable to anyone, the reps would not tell taxpayers who they worked for. And the Office of Inspector General (OIG) system has now completely fallen apart and no longer police itself, or the agencies it is supposed to investigate.

Right now, the unresponsive uS DoD/Pentagon has mis-used an OIG office to channel $2 Billion in "reconstruction funds" back to the Taliban who are busy kidnapping and murdering the human rights activists, female activists, interpreters, etc. we left behind in Afghanistan... while the average US taxpayer has no idea that we are still shoveling money into Afghanistan. This office is called SIGAR - Special Inspectors General for Afghanistan Reconstruction. I tried to get someone there to talk to me. I called about 5 times over a three week period. They were friendly at first, but no one ever returned my calls and they refused to transfer me to anyone when I was in front of them on the phone. That's the federal agency internal investigative organization. A worthless piece of shit.

I remember that! As the months go by, it becomes crystal clear why Catherine Austin John Titus have referred to the fedgov as a criminal organization for many years now

While the IRS mis-uses CFR statutes to loan shark American taxpayers forever:

Have you been following the PTAR information that is trickling out on Substack and T through Bo Johnson at Yestohellwith?

[yestohellwith.substack.com > p > theres-a-government-document-the]
(<https://yestohellwith.substack.com/p/theres-a-government-document-the-8483aha/>)

The Parallel Table of Authorities and Regulations (PTAR)

Supposed to be a document link map that traces the legislation published in the CFR regulations it produces. The PTAR is a Chain of Command Chart

- A direct link from statute, delegated authority, regulatory jurisdiction, and enforcement method.

Why does this matter?

-Regulations - If a regulation has no statutory authority under the PTAR, it has no jurisdiction.

-Statutes - If a statute does not map to the relevant CFR Part, the agency has no authority to enforce that rule.

The PTAR is the mirror of the federal government that no one wants citizens to know. When it is held up against the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), the result is devastating to the agency.

Two current IRS examples:

1) INTERNAL REV CODE: 26 USC 7203 "Willful Failure to File." The go to weapon. They lean on more than any other. There is no regulatory delegation for this statute to any private citizen. There is no regulation to say who is required to file, and much more. Lethal to the IRS, because this is a structural failure.

2) 26 USC 7212 Not an Obstruction of IRS Law. The IRS applies to anyone who stand their rights, challenges their jurisdiction. Only applies to Excise jurisdictions - alcohol, firearms, regulated goods and NOT wage earners, private citizens, 1040 filers. This statute is for commodity commercial taxation - not private citizens.

It was never to be used against the general public. This is: regulatory fraud, violation of jurisdiction, enforcement of ungranted authority. The IRS is prosecuting statutes even when the regulatory authority does not exist. Enforcement is based on presumption.

Here is the list of nasty possible outcomes from AI that BCG does not want you to see:

"THE ETHICAL ISSUES TIED TO GENERATIVE AI GOVERNANCE

As users experiment with these systems, there are serious ethical issues that need to be addressed:

1) Unknown Capabilities. Large generative AI systems such as ChatGPT have exhibited a massive capability overhang—skills and dangers that were not planned for in the development phase, and are generally unknown and unexpected even to the developers. This can pose a serious threat if the right guardrails are not in place to effectively manage unexpected capabilities.

2) Bias and Toxicity (??). Outputs from generative AI will be as biased as the data it is trained on. Many popular language models today are trained on the wilds of the internet, where there is plenty of bias—along with toxic and harmful ideas.

3) Data Leakage. Many companies have quickly put policies in place to forbid employees from entering sensitive information into ChatGPT so that it could get incorporated into the AI model and re-emerge in the future.

4) Hallucination. ChatGPT can make arguments that sound extremely convincing but are 100% wrong. Developers refer to this as "hallucination," a potential outcome that limits the reliability of the answers coming from these models.

5) Lack of Transparency. Generative AI models currently provide no attribution for the facts underlying the content they generate, which makes it impossible to verify the correctness of generated claims—further increasing the danger posed by AI-model hallucinations.

6) Copyright Controversies. Since the data sets used by AI models are derived from the public internet, a legal question arises: Does the use of this data constitute copyright infringement?

Good grief, is there nothing sacrosanct or off limits to greed and avarice in the U.S or has slid that far backwards that upon the altar of money nothing but nothing can interfere with pursuit and coveting of wealth, personally I'm grateful for the blessing of knowing the wealth created was the result of doing it the old fashioned way, smarts, effort through long hours sheer hard work using the traits and skill sets possessed.... For many it has to be a quick doing a drug I guess, the dopamine activated each cheque or transfer that hits the recipient account... but seriously, stooping so low as to use and take from those needing Hospice care a bigger issue being the ripple effect to all bona fide cancer sufferers needing hospice care on everyone who thought themselves clever ripping off taxpayers and worse some among societies most vulnerable, hope when, if they need such a service, they struggle to find one can treat them personally ... karma.. just saying Kia Kaha (Stay strong) From New Zealand

Meryl thanks for all you do, you are amazing.

What we call government is a criminal cartel, with tentacles that steal, kill, divide, poison, program the sheep that are converted by the programming to sheeple.

The examples of the crimes this cartel commits are infinite, the harm done is genocidal. From scamdemics, bioweapon injections, programmed meaningless wars, and more.

Change, real change would involve the systemic destruction of these criminal cartels, and prosecution and severe punishment of the perps. This is hardly possible within the existing framework, a system that the criminal cartel called government put together, with the explicit purpose of allowing them to destroy, control, and extort in perpetuity without consequence.

Admittedly, the burrito stand sign isn't a good look, but it seems to be gaslighting the situation without investigating that individual situation.
