

Radical Explained

I'm Not Insane

MICHAEL HERMAN

SEP 13, 2026

I rant. I get emotional. I sound radical. I realize that some things said in this forum may appear a bit unhinged to the average American out there living a parallel

In the “Randoms” this week I advocated for violence as a solution to the ills and injustices we all endure. And I could understand someone recoiling from the carnal nature of the suggestion.

I went so far as to slightly absolve Luigi Mangione for his supposed actions, where one should ever consider a father and husband gunned down in cold blood to be anything less than a callous murder. To suggest that Mangione was acting to rectify extreme wrongs of the insurance industry at large with his actions might be a bit too far.

I respect those that read here, and understand these are my fellow people, those who thirst for an added perspective, who enjoy absorbing information for the enrichment and fulfillment of a greater learning and understanding. The people that come to Substack to read aren't satisfied with the mainstream media status quo and intentionally seek out an alternative view.

I shouldn't alarm them with suggestions of violence, retribution, and delivering pain and suffering in this cruel mortal coil.

But.

Do you know who does appear to understand that violence will get you what you need? Do you know who actively uses violence with such a regularity to achieve their means and end goals that no one in America sits in awe when they hear that particular entity has employed violence toward their means?

Israel.

Israel has been causing war, jack booting neighbors, employing the US to do the dirty business of war, and has been causing upheaval in the Middle East for many lifetimes.

Israel right now is bombing Lebanon, has just decimated Syria, has the US fighting war against Iran on their behalf, at various times has attacked Jordan in my lifetime and used us to remove Saddam Hussein in a years long conflict in Iraq.

Israel is committing a full blown genocide in Gaza and removing the Palestinian people from that land either through death or relocation, and they continue to get all world condemnation to wreck the homes, burn the homes, of both Christian and Palestinian in the West Bank, so they can just absorb all the land they desire "Greater Israel".

Israel jack boots their neighbors straight to the teeth and then cries, "they blew up my new boots", and as they control the American mainstream in total, see Rob Lowe's family at NBC, Ellison family at CBS, Murdocks at Fox, and Blackrock influences ABC, Zionists all, we get the more sympathetic understanding of the Middle East situation where Israel claims, "all our neighbors want us dead", as if that justifies burning people from their ancestral homes, and murdering them en masse.

What I find interesting, what I find curious, is that the same readership that reacts with horror at my hint that violence is an answer, or solution, and think me insane, need of some serious lecturing on the evils of violence, sit in complete approval.

what Israel has done, and is doing, in the Middle East.

Rules for thee, but not for me.

Sorry, but after a long life of real observation of the human condition, the struggle whether it be against government, king, or class, I have seen evil men and evil movements, whose eradication can only come at the hand of the gun or sword.

And I understand the irony, I condemn Israel for their use of violence as I advocate it as a solution to other world problems.

I don't understand how anyone can view the Middle East situation and not see that Israel is in the wrong, they are the transgressor. And still they are excused by a sympathetic American public. Brainwashed by a controlled media.

The day that a few of the Fox News babes revealed on air that they'd been on a company sponsored "Birthright" style trip to Israel to see things "first hand", and Emily Compagno and Katie Pavlich then parroted every Israel talking point is the day Fox News went off in this home permanently.

"Fair and Balanced" isn't birthed on a brainwashing trip sponsored by Netanyahu. It is a pure propaganda trip equivalent to Jane Fonda visiting North Vietnam.

Let me ask you, what do we do with a pharmaceutical industry that has drugged us under false pretense, injected a drug into us untested, one that didn't work as advertised, was never properly tested, and that now is being revealed as to what it's doing inside our bodies in ways that might not be best for our long term health?

They knew the Covid shot didn't work, they knew there were heart risks, risks to the male reproductive system, had dangerous potential for the pregnant woman, and they promoted the shots and made billions of dollars.

Sorry, that is just evil. That is pure, evil, intent.

Fauci lied to us all, funded gain-of-function, worked with the pharmaceutical to force us all to get the shot, lied to us multiple times before multiple cameras could argue, Rand Paul certainly does convincingly, that Fauci is responsible for mass murder worldwide.

What do you do with such a man?

Mangione became frustrated with health issues and dealt with the “denied, denied” policies of an evil industry, where men have designed the program to maximize profits over people. Where “no” is the knee jerk default, where the corporation gives the average customer the complete run around to gain service payment, even when they know the customer deserves to be serviced.

What do you do with men who ride such an awful and horrible system and ride huge personal wealth and profits, as average people suffer? What do you do with a CEO living in the twelve thousand square foot home in the suburbs of New Jersey is comfortable riding a system of “denial” to their customers, as a patient dies in hospital, their family in complete despair, and now the long fight with the insurance company they’ve paid to get their due?

Excuse me for thinking that perhaps if one or more of these pig humans faced consequence for setting up such a horrible system that abuses their customer with the full approval of our government they’ve purchased, that we might get real reform and these insurance firms might see the error of their ways.

At this point I believe that Fauci belongs “under the jail”, not just in it. He is pure human filth, he assisted in perpetuating an evil that our nation will deal with for generations.

I ask again, what do you do with such men. What do you do with the pharmaceutical barons who knowingly price life saving medicine costs beyond the reach of the need, citing “all our R and D costs”?

Sorry, but people who put greed before lives need to answer for their behavior

As for my advocacy of violence in Northern Ireland, well, Michael Collins negotiated a bad treaty a hundred years ago, over violence that had been ongoing for hundreds of years before that, and here we sit with British rule on Irish soil.

If establishing “colony” is wrong, and we’ve certainly seen the Dutch in South Africa pilloried for such, then British rule over Irish soil is wrong.

Give Ireland back to the Irish, don’t make them have to take it away.

The “Orange” that inhabit the space are loyal to a foreign king, while standing on the soil of the tricolor. That I cannot abide.

And the Catholics of Northern Ireland have always been treated there as second class citizens. All patronage goes to the Protestant. The system has worked against the Irish there since Michael Collins attempted to gain a United Ireland and before that all the way back to Cromwell, in what, 1649?

But it is time.

And it appears from this chair the only thing the Brits understand is violence, they certainly know how to employ it against the Catholic Irish there.

The difference between my advocacy of the use of violence, and what I see in the Middle East, is that I stand on the side of the downtrodden, the beaten, the oppressed.

The victim of the insurance firm, the victim of the pharmaceutical greed, the victim

Israeli violence, the poor and beaten Catholic in Northern Ireland suffering as second class citizen in his own land.

We live with men right now today who go to work running firms and controlling entire industries whose greed knows no bounds, whose rapacious ways harms and who live a life surrounded by comforts achieved through ill gotten gains.

On the backs of abused customers.

This is our reality. Talk to insurance company victims who fought, and fought fought for approval for treatment, only to lose their loved one before the string “denials” would allow the approval they needed. Where is their justice?

I’m a peaceful man. I do not advocate harm readily or easily. I am, perhaps, the anti-violent man you’d ever meet. I wouldn’t raise a hand to another.

But I am tired of seeing the “long arm of justice” follow a curve that never sees lower to provide for the common man.

I find it a complete shame the world sat and watched Palestinians wiped off the Gaza, just murdered and their land flattened, and the world did nothing.

Evil men flourish when good men do not act.

Look around. We are awash in evil men.

Indeed, up to our necks in filthy swampwater. The seven deadlies are still deadly. Are the bankers actually human? Greed seems to be the law of the land.

We need justice for... "The victim of the insurance firm, the victim of the pharmaceutical, the victim of Israeli violence, the poor and beaten Catholic in Northern Ireland suffering as a second class citizen in his own land." I agree with your post, Mr Herman. We've entered an era of mass unaccountability. Our governance structure has become ever more unmoored, detached needs of its citizens. Sociopaths respect violence. I don't think Netanyahu or his Likud change until violence reaches their doorstep. CEOs won't change until the violence of 1 is visited upon them in turn. I tried to give money to the Canadian Truckers during COV prevented from doing so by changes to the online donation platform. I might be more v support subversives if I could do so discreetly. Having said that, violence should be a la example, divestment of US investments in Israel should make a return. It is not just an a state, it is a genocidal state. The governmental bodies responsible for incorporating sh DISSOLVE corporations that are behaving badly. Fuck the shareholders good and hard profit over humanity. The US population must regain control of their governance. I am r this will be done. It is said, "If voting worked, we would be prevented from doing so." In of violence can lead to anarchy, and the surveillance state will do everything it can to b chaos and violence. You and Tim Dillon, among others, are fairly black pillled. We need unblinkingly at the darkness that seeks to engulf us and speak our truth, if nothing else
